2010 Can-Am DS 250 ATV

The Can-Am DS 250™ ATV is the entry-level, recreation/sport offering from BRP. With many features that other models in its class lack, such as liquid-cooling, the DS 250 inspires confidence and exudes performance and fun. For 2010, the DS 250 is a designated T-class ATV, meaning it is designed for riders 14 and older.

2010 DS 250 Highlights

- Liquid-cooled 249cc engine
- CVT transmission
- Hydraulic disc brakes with steel-braided brake lines
- Front and rear spring pre-load load adjusters
- Meets CARB "Green Label" emissions standards
- Offered in EC and non-EC versions

DS 250 Key Features

NEW! T-Class designation – For 2010, the DS 250 is a designated T-class ATV, meaning it is designed for riders 14 years of age and older, with a maximum unregulated speed of 61 km/h (38 mph).

Liquid-cooled 249cc engine – Great, consistent power for its class, thanks to liquid-cooling, single overhead cam and four-valve head. One of the only liquid-cooled engines in its category.

Automatic CVT Transmission – Continuously Variable Transmission is always in the "correct gear" and delivers quicker acceleration.

Hydraulic disc brakes with steel-braided brake lines – Front and rear hydraulic disc brakes for outstanding stopping power. Braided stainless steel lines reduce fade while split brakes add control.

Front and rear spring pre-load load adjusters – Five-position adjusters on the Motion Control shocks make it easy to adjust the DS 250's suspension to driver weight and terrain conditions.

Full Lighting – Twin 35-Watt headlights illuminate the trail ahead and the tail light/brake light communicate the driver's moves to followers.

Eggy Design – Edgy, aggressive bodywork and minimalist style will surely turn heads.
